DEDICATION

The Class of 1959 dedicates this annual, the COLFACTOR, to Mrs. June Hunt. Her devoted efforts have made possible the completion of many annuals including this one. Her resourcefulness will achieve for us the accomplishments of future lives. "Mrs. Hunt, the Senior Class is deeply indebted to you for all that you have done for us."

PROPHECY

As I lifted the lid of the old chest, I spotted some of my old yearbooks. I picked one up and blew the dust from it. I opened the faded cover and turned through the first couple of pages and saw the classmates of my senior year. Now seven years later I looked back and began to think of the different ways we had parted.

As I looked over my classmates, I realized that Colfax School has grown considerably since I graduated. It now has 2,000 students; and since Mr. Bolen has retired at an early age, Dale Marshall is principal. R. J. Welborn is his assistant, and Margaret Pegram is his secretary. Barbara Gray is teaching the first grade, and Lillias Smith is the home economics teacher for the high school.

As I saw Becky Westmoreland's picture, I remembered that she was a private secretary and the wife of a well-known coach.

For such splendid playing, Adrian Dean's ball club won him a trip to Europe last week.

In the hugh metropolis of the Carolinas, John Thompson has become pastor of one of the largest churches with Sarah Marshall as organist and Jerry VonCannon, choir director.

John Potts is the chief fireman at the Colfax Fire Department, and Dickie Warf has just been elected "Fireman of the Year."

My eyes gazed to Malinda Gossett's picture, who was the private nurse for Mr. Eisenhower during his long stay at Walter Reed Hospital. While looking over the pictures I saw Ann Stafford, who is the head nurse at Duke Hospital in Durham, North Carolina.

My eyes fell upon Marie Bull who had just finished an interior decorating job for Pat Boone's new home.

Then I saw Ray Smith and Neil Morgan, and I remembered that they were joint owners of one of the biggest ranches in Texas.

As I glanced over my own picture, I was reminded of the enjoyment I received from my work as president of Superior Airlines. Brenda Tucker has been in charge of training stewardesses ever since the company began. I have just given my stenographer, Barbara Flynt, a paid vacation to Hawaii. She is staying in Wayne Knight's giant skyscraper hotel, and Judy Simmons and Carolyn Bull are nightly performers there. Also Mary Ann Venable's children are doing the "Charleston" as an extra added attraction. The newest part to the hotel, the Reducing Salon and Beauty Salon, opened last week with Betty Lou Wells and Nancy Jo Lankford as new owners. Linda Atkins is instructing women in the reducing salon.

I closed the covers of the book, but it did not close the memories in my mind. I knew they could never be destroyed.

LAST WILL AND TESTAMENT

Linda Atkins wills her shooting ability to Fred Bame. "Keep the ball bouncing, Fred."

Carolyn Bull wills her peroxide hair to Grace Nuckles with this comment, "Grace, if it grows out put more on."

Adrian Dean wills his many times to the office to Gene Stafford. "You had better play it smart, Gene!"

Barbara Gray wills her quietness to Linda Atkins. "Linda, turn the volume down!"

Malinda Gossett wills her ability to be Mrs. Pearce's pet in geometry to Donald Dillon.

Eddie Lankford wills his black and white coat to Joseph Seigler. "Throw yours away; mine's the prettiest."

Wayne Knight wills his ability to "gun" that hot Ford to Garrett Maness.

Nancy Jo Lankford wills her position as guard on Mr. Nelson's basketball team to Jewel Morgan. "All you need is a basketball."

R. J. Welborn wills his cuteness to Bobby Stafford. "Bobby, better get some curls!"

Dale Marshall wills his ability to get into the Beta Club without studying to Herbie Gray.

Sarah Marshall wills her ability to get on the bus at the clover leaf to Nancy Linville, who has to walk to school.

Margaret Pegram wills her red hair to Cindy Potts. "Keep it shining, Cindy."

John Potts wills his laziness in school to Charlotte Williard. "Slow down and have some fun."

Judy Simmons wills her ability to play ball to Betty Wilson.

Lillias Smith wills her A's in English to Wayne Gossett.

Ray Smith wills his ability to learn Spanish I to Billy Gray. "Use the book as much as I did, Billy."

Ann Stafford wills her geometry book to Jean Sapp.

John Thompson wills his attentiveness in class to Rex Gray.

Brenda Tucker wills her nerve to streak her hair and not regret it to Shelby Long.

Betty Lou Wells wills her singing ability to Gerald Rice.

Rebecca Westmoreland wills her ability to stay with the grammar grades to Betty Atkins. "All it takes is patience."

Dickie Warf wills his good manners to Barbara Oakes. "Barbara, cut out some of that foolishness."

Marie Bull wills her pixie hair cut to Bonnie Morgan.

Neil Morgan wills his blue Mercury to Edna and Margaret Tilly.

I, Jerry VonCannon, will to Sandra Atkins my ability not to say anything "but just think."

I, Barbara Flynt, will my school spirit to Mitchell Morgan.

We, the Senior Class, will to the rest of the Juniors best wishes for the coming year.

IN MEMORIAM

On January 9, 1959, Linda Carol Tucker, 15, departed from her busy life on earth to a richer, fuller life in eternity. She was loved by all her friends for her pleasant smile and cheerful attitude, and she was certainly an asset to her school and community. We shall never forget her: the nice things she did, the happy moments we shared with her, when she served at the Beta Club Banquet, became President of the Sophomore Class, Treasurer of the F. H. A., cheerleader, and a Beta Club member. These are only a few of her attainments. She shall live in our hearts and minds as we remember "She is not dead; she is just away."
